

Chapter 4: Conditional Statements

Conditional statements control the execution flow of a program based on whether specific boolean expressions evaluate to True or False. Primary Control Structures: - if statement: Executes a block of code only if the condition is true. - elif (Else If) clause: Evaluates subsequent expressions if preceding conditions fail. - else statement: Catches all remaining cases when prior conditions evaluate to false. Syntax structure relies entirely on proper colon usage and consistent code block indentation.